Local radio is tired and does not even service the public anymore.

Radio giants like Clear Channel do not even have local and live personalities in their stations anymore. How can you block XM from providing what Clear Channel won't?

Blocking Satellite Radio more than you already have would be a great disservice to all of America.

You allow Cable companies such as Time Warner to offer local programing, like their local news channels, yet they are a subscription service just like XM. What is the difference?

Please make the right decision - let satellite radio compete and offer local programming. Lord knows Clear Channel won't.
